Muskoka Novel Marathon 2008

writers supporting READERS

On Fri., July 11, an eclectic group of writers from across Canada begin the 7th Annual Muskoka Novel Marathon in Huntsville.

For 48-72 hours, this committed group of writers will remain mostly sequestered until the closing bell rings. Each writer is allowed only a one-page outline going in. What comes out is sometimes a manuscript well in excess of 100 pages.

Even though the event has been organized by the Muskoka Literacy Council for the past four years, it was the brainchild of writers Martin Avery, Mel Malton, Christina Kilbourne and Ann Vaughn-Evans, in 2002.

Over the past six years, writers have gathered almost $25,000 in pledges to support the Muskoka Literacy Council.

For more info or to help with Muskoka Literacy, please contact Pat Peat, Program Coordinator at 789-1850 or literacy@vianet.ca.
